

2026

The world hates change, yet it is the only thing that has brought progress.

Our imagination is the only limit to what we can hope to have in the future.

One fails forward toward success.

High achievements always takes place in the framework of high expectation.

If you have always done it that way, it is probably wrong.

A problem well stated is a problem half-solved.